NUMBER 60.

Capt. E. F. Spears Dead.

Capt. E. F. Spears, one of Paris' most prominent and highly esteemed citizens, died at his home on High street, Thursday morning at 6 o'clock of heart trouble.

In the passing away of Capt. Spears a devoted husband, a loving father, an honored business man, a brave soldier, a true and loyal friend has been removed from our midst.

Capt. Spears was born in Paris in 1840, and was the third son of Abram Spears and Rebecca Ford. At the age of thirteen he began to do for himself, being early in life trained to provide for his own necessities, and after meeting all of the obligations of life like a true man, he dies a wealthy man, leaving one of the largest and most prosperous enterprises in our community, being at the head of the well-known firm of E. F. Spears & Sons.

At the outbreak of the war he espoused the cause of the South, and volunteered his services in the Second Kentucky Infantry as private, he was, however, soon after elected First Lieutenant in Company "G," known in history as the "Orphan Brigade," and for effective service rendered, he was promoted to a Captaincy, and bravely led his company until the close of the war. During this time he participated in all the heavy battles in which his command was engaged, except Shiloh. He was three times wounded and once taken prisoner, yet through all, he acquitted himself as a true and gallant soldier.

There are only three surviving members now left of the famous "Orphan Brigade"—J. F. McDonald, of Kansas City, now visiting friends here, John Carrington, of Nicholasville, and John Mahone, who has been an inmate of the county infirmary for twenty years, refusing a number of times to allow Capt. Spears to provide a home for him.

Upon his return to Paris at the termination of the War, Capt. Spears engaged in the grocery business for two years with his brother, the late Henry Spears. In 1867 he engaged in business under the firm name of Woodford, Spears & Clay, which lasted for nine years when the firm dissolved. Capt. Spears then purchased the mill site on Stoner, now known as Spears' Mill, which he conducted until he moved to Paris in about 1886.

In coming to Paris he purchased the coal, grain and seed business of his deceased brother, Mr. Wm. Spears, and for a number of years the firm name was Spears & Stuart until the firm was dissolved and Capt. Spears then took his two sons, Woodford and Catesby, into the business with him.

In 1866 he married Miss Sallie Woodford, eldest daughter of the late John T. Woodford. To them were born five children, Miss Mary, John Woodford, Miss Lizzie, Catesby Woodford, and Keith Young Spears, who with their mother, survive.

Capt. Spears was a consistent member of the Second Presbyterian church for years, and for a number of years has held the office of Elder. He will be missed by his church.

The funeral services will be held at the residence on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock conducted by Rev. Dr. E. H. Rutherford.

The pall-bearers will be Dr. C. J. Clarke, James McDonald, Geo. R. Bell, Buckner Woodford, Sr., Cabell Bullock, Lot Young, Chas. Stephens and John T. Woodford.

Death of Mrs. Clarke.

Mrs. Florence Fox Clarke, wife of Chas. C. Clarke, of near North Middleton, died Wednesday evening, at six o'clock, of pneumonia.

Mrs. Clarke was about 38 years old, and before her marriage was a Miss Fox, of Mason county. She was a most estimable young woman and leaves a husband and two sons to mourn her loss.

The funeral services were held at the residence yesterday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, conducted by Elder C. W. Dick. Burial in North Middletown cemetery.

The pall-bearers were: Dr. Frank Fithian, Claude M. Thomas, J. J. Reemon, A. G. Jones, W. A. Thomason, H. S. Caywood, J. T. Hedges and Ed Rice.

At the Churches.

Rev. Jos. S. Malone has returned from his vacation and will fill his pulpit at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning and evening.

Elder Carey E. Morgan will fill his pulpit at the Christian church Sunday morning and evening.

The plays are all new and of a high standard. "The Herder" the opening play has been pronounced one of the best plays ever written. Others are "The Octoroon," "The College Boy," "An Orphan's Prayer," "For Hearth and Home," "The Girl and the Gambler," "States Evidence" and others.

Democrats to Open State Campaign.

The State Democratic Campaign will be launched at Lexington at the Auditorium, on next Saturday, the 31st inst. Hon. W. P. Kimball, Congressman-elect of the Ashland District, has been selected by the State Campaign Committee to act as Chairman of the meeting and to introduce the several speakers on this occasion.

The addresses will be delivered by Judge S. W. Hager, Democratic nominee for Governor; the Hon. J. C. W. Beckham, Governor, and Hon. John K. Hendricks, Democratic nominee for Attorney General. With these speeches it is intended that they shall make a complete answer to the charges made by the Republican leaders, and they will define the issue as between the parties, fully and clearly, and will also recite what Democracy has stood for in our State, the helpful results it has attained and what is promised for the future.

This will be a meeting of the "great common people," determined on leading Kentucky's Southland hosts onward and upward to the achievement of even greater prosperity and to higher morals. It will be a day that will go down in the history of Lexington as a great political awakening, calculated to sweep the Republican ticket off its feet. Thousands are going to Lexington and Lexington is fully prepared to receive and welcome them. Pledges of loyalty and support are being received from every town and county with railroad connections to Lexington and it is considered by the party leaders that this meeting will win thousands of votes for the Democratic ticket.

Additional Suits Filed Against County Officials.

On Wednesday, Attorney T. E. Moore, Jr., counsel for plaintiff in all of these suits filed the following additional suits:

James O'Brien, for benefit of Bourbon county, vs. Denis Dundon, to recover $1,031, alleged illegal fees collected by himself from the county.

Same vs. Chas. E. Butler, to recover $300, for alleged illegal fees collected by him from the county.

PAYABLE IN ADVANCE.Willson's "Opening Gun," Proves to Be a Small Firecracker.

The "opening gun" of the Republican campaign for State offices, fired at Maysville, Mason county by August E. Willson, the gubernatorial nominee of that party, proved to be a small firecracker indeed. From "twenty thousand and out of town people," expected "for Willson day," and heralded by the Republican press of that section, the actual number present upon the occasion dwindled to less than "one thousand out of town people, and that thousand," missing the other nineteen thousand promised to greet them, gave but little enthusiasm to the "auspicious occasion." And this in the birthplace of the gubernatorial candidate and the home of the party nominee for second place on the Republican ticket.

The initial speech of candidate Willson was a disappointment to Republicans and Democrats alike. Disappointing to the Republicans in that they had been led to expect a better speech from the man whom former Governor Bradley foisted upon them as their nominee and the head of their ticket. Disappointing to them in that the speaker devoted his entire time to bidding for Democratic votes by attempting to renew the old "machine" fight within the Democratic party, which matter was disposed of in the campaign within the dominant party before the State primary election, instead of giving to his followers some hope that Democratic administration of public affairs in Kentucky for the past eight years could be successfully attacked by himself, his fellow candidates, and Republican orators in this campaign. The "occasion" was agreeably disappointing to the Democratic leaders of Kentucky, for they really expected that Mr. Willson's "opening" would bring many thousands of people to Maysville. Situated geographically where it was thought thousands of Republicans of Greenup, Lewis, Carter, Rowan and other counties of that section of Kentucky could be drawn upon to swell the crowd, as well as bringing many from across the Ohio river, the meeting was expected to be a big affair, which might have a tendency to temporarily dishearten the faithful Democrats of that section. It was further disappointing in that Mr. Willson did not lay down the lines of his battle, instead of making a "home-coming" address, which would have better suited such an occasion as the "Home-coming" at Louisville some months ago. The Republican candidates may deal out "words, words, words" for a week longer, but Democratic nominees and Democratic orators will then be after him and his political associates and they must march up and discuss live issues. They must give the newspapers what they really say and not what is prepared for them to say to the voters from the stump, though in the instance of Mr. Willson's initial speech issues which will interest the people of the State were not discussed in either the "advance copy" speech or in the "delivered" speech. Ever a dodger, as was his party when in convention assembled and live matters came before it, he dodged more clumsily than did that body upon the temperance issue, and thereby made thousands of votes over Kentucky for the Democratic candidates.

Upon the subject of temperance the Republican platform, upon which Mr. Willson was placed by a convention of his party, has the following:

"We favor the enactment and enforcement of a uniform local option law, with the county as the governing unit."

Mr. Willson, in his "advance copy" speech, differs from this platform, and makes the "precinct" the unit in local option elections. He said:

"I believe unrelentingly in the rule of the majority of country, of State, of county, city and precinct, even if the majority decides something that the minority seriously dislikes and objects to, provided it is constitutional." "I do not believe that absolute prohibition can be sustained in a large city," said Mr. Willson, bidding for the saloon vote of the city of Louisville, and that of the city of Covington, which sent a special train of people to the speaking.

This is what Mr. Willson said on this subject, as given out by himself before he said it. What he really did say has been taken by a stenographer, and will, later, be available. The Maysville Bulletin, published at Maysville, says that he "handed a lemon to the 'grand stand' temperance advocates and read his own platform, which, he said, he didn't allow the President of the anti-saloon League to write for him either, and took a parting shot at the fellow from Missouri who wanted to be sworn, by adding that he wasn't in the habit of answering any questions that were accompanied with a threat."

What Mr. Willson denounced as a "threat" was, very probably, the written request of a temperance paper, published at Maysville, and of the anti-Saloon League of Kentucky, that he came straight out in the matter of temperance and did not attempt to hide behind a straight line on the party, and its utter silence in the matter of enforcement of the Sabbath observance laws of the State.

True to his master's teaching as to how to beguile the innocent appearing voter of Kentucky, Mr. Willson, like Mr. Bradley did in 1895, declared that the Republicans want to look at the books of the State, and that the people can only secure such a look by turning over the administration of affairs to the party led by himself. He charged "misdoings, almost amounting to burglary and arson" to the "Democratic organization now ruling in Kentucky," but did not specify wherein the party is "guilty of the charge unless, as he declared, it is guilty by losing the support of John G. Carlisle and William Lindsay, both of New York, and by going directly to the people, by the primary election method to secure its nominees for State and Federal positions. Mr. Willson didn't tell his hearers that, while he knows nothing that could be shown against the Democratic organization by a look at the books, that he has had the former Private Secretary of fugitive W. S. Taylor, and the Republican postmaster of Frankfort, and others, at work for months in the office of State Auditor Hager and of Governor Beckham seeking some material upon which, he, Willson, could hinge his opening address, and about which Republican campaign orators could prate the stump during the campaign. He didn't tell his hearers that the last time John G. Carlisle set foot in Kentucky, he came from his home in the East to try to "knock out in the Courts of Kentucky a Democratic law, passed by a Democratic General Assembly, to prohibit the education of negroes in the same school room with the children of the white voters of the State, and that he is still engaged, in the Supreme Court at Washington, in an effort to defeat the purpose of that good law, which has been upheld by a Democratic Court of Appeals in Kentucky. While he criticized the Democratic primary election method in Kentucky, he didn't tell his hearers that the Republicans have in Kentucky a party organization made up of Federal officeholders who so completely dominate the voters that there is hardly enough opposition to them to necessitate the holding of a convention, much less a primary election, and that in many instances during this year the Republican State convention there were not enough candidates in the field for all offices to make up a full ticket to go on the ballot.

Will Mr. Willson, if elected to the office of Governor, give freedom to Caleb Powers, W. S. Taylor, Jim Howard, Charles Finley, Henry Youtsey and others, charged with the foul assassination of William Goebel is the question very naturally being asked in many sections of Kentucky, where the name of the martyred Goebel is greatly revered. Of course, Mr. Willson, like Mr. Yerkes and Mr. Belknap, his predecessors in the matter of holding the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Kentucky, will refuse to come straight out with an answer to this question. Why, he even refused to answer directly a question put as to his temperance views. But where he stands upon this proposition, and what he would do is plainly told in his Maysville speech, which marked the Republican campaign opening. His running mate, William H. Cox, very bluntly said at that meeting that other matters were of more interest to the people of Kentucky at this time and in this campaign, but Mr. Willson had already prepared a speech which had gone out to the newspapers of Kentucky. He declared in that speech that Governor Beckham held an office to which John Marshall, of Louisville, running mate of the fugitive Taylor in 1899, was elected, and that Judge Hager, his Democratic opponent in this campaign, held an office to which Walter Day, another running mate of the bloody Taylor, was elected. He, in these utterances, stands with W. S. Taylor and Caleb Powers. He stands by the Taylor pardons to Powers and others. He believes that they were fraudulently turned out of offices by Democrats of the General Assembly, and what he would do for them now is plainly apparent to everyone who will read between the lines of his speech to the Mason county voters.

"DO IT TO-DAY!"

"And to think that ten months ago I looked like this! I owe it to German Syrup."

The time-worn injunction, "Never put off 'til to-morrow what you can do to-day," is now generally presented in this form: "Do it to-day!" That is the terse advice we want to give you about that hacking cough or demoralizing cold with which you have been struggling for several days, perhaps weeks. Take some reliable remedy for it TO-DAY—and let that remedy be Dr. Boschee's German Syrup, which has been in use for over thirty-five years. A few doses of it will undoubtedly relieve your cough or cold, and its continued use for a few days will cure you completely. No matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble. New trial bottles, 25c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists.

Cat Laughter?

What was the origin of the phrase "Enough to make a cat laugh?" Dr. Murray's Dictionary notices only "Enough to make a cat speak," which is explained as signifying something extraordinary, especially something very good to drink. "Old liquor able to make a cat speak" is quoted from an early eighteenth century source, and therewith Stephano's remark to Caliban is compared, "Open your mouth; here is that which will give language to you, cat." Miss Squeers' maid-servant said that only to see Miss Squeers' friend, Miss Price, toss her head was "enough to make a toment talk French grammar." But even that is not exactly laughing. Has it anything to do with the mythical Cheshire animal?—London Chronicle.

Dress in Old Massachusetts.

There was an ancient law in Massachusetts that ladies' dresses should be made long enough to hide their shoe buckles. In 1686 an act of the general court prohibited short sleeves and required garments to be lengthened so as to cover the arms to the wrists and gowns to the shoe buckles; "immoderate great breeches, knots of ribbon, broad shoulder bands, and they be, silk roses, double ruffs and cuffs" were forbidden. In the same colony, in 1633, I. Fahlbanks was tried for wearing great boots, but was acquitted.

The Early Worm.

Entertaining a children's party at a certain millionaire's house in New York, a woman professional teller of stories to juveniles happened to employ the old proverb, "The early bird catches the worm." A little boy questioned the proverb promptly. "But wasn't the worm foolish," he asked, "to get up early and be caught?" "My dear," said the story teller, "that worm hadn't been to bed at all. He was just getting home."

Girl Friends.

Nell—Did you tell her I couldn't come? Belle—Yes, and she seemed surprised. Nell—But didn't you explain to her that I've got the chicken-pox? Belle—Yes; that's what surprised her. She said you were no chicken. —Catholic Standard and Times.

SAILS THROUGH SKIES

Knabenshue and His New Passenger-Carrying Airship.

KENTUCKY STATE FAIR FLIGHTS

Will Go Up Daily During Week of Sept. 16—A Description of the Aerial Wonder.

This, in brief, describes the passenger-carrying airship just invented by Captain Roy Knabenshue of Toledo, O., the first American to master the problem of aerial navigation. Captain Knabenshue will personally appear at the Kentucky State Fair to be held in Louisville under the auspices of the State Board of Agriculture, during the week of Sept. 16, and present to the public the first passenger-carrying airship in the world's history. Many years have been devoted by Captain Knabenshue toward the perfection of a craft that will sail the uncharted skies. It was he who made the first flight in an airship in America. This feat was accomplished in October, 1904, at the St. Louis World's Fair, and attracted the attention of the civilized world. Since then he has worked assiduously to the end now attained. Midnight oil was burned all last winter in putting his ideas together, and at last his efforts are crowned with success.

At a great expenditure his services and those of his passenger-carrying airship have been secured for Kentucky State Fair. His only appearance in Kentucky or Southern Indiana is to be made at the metropolis of the State during State Fair week. Indeed, he is to make only five other appearances during the year, two of which will be in New York City, sailing over Manhattan Island, and at the Jamestown Exposition, sailing over Hampton Roads. Easily the engagement of Captain Knabenshue and his passenger-carrying airship are the biggest attractions secured by any State Fair in the country.

The secret of the invention is being guarded closely by the Toledo man, but he has consented to give to the public a brief description. The vessel as a whole has but a faint resemblance to the smaller crafts of the kind which have heretofore been shown in this country. There is used an elongated gas bag constructed of thousands of yards of imported silk of the finest texture, which has a capacity of more than 20,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas, giving to the craft a lifting power of 1,800 pounds. This envelope is 120 feet in length and something like 35 feet in diameter. Beneath the envelope is the carrying car, 90 feet in length, and very closely resembling an ordinary streetcar. On either side are two mammoth aeroplanes with which the wind is resisted and the vessel propelled.

The secret of Captain Knabenshue's success probably lies in the two delicately constructed engines of 20 horse-power each, which furnish the driving power. These enable the craft to sail through the air at a speed of about 60 miles an hour when all is calm. This velocity is reduced to 40 miles an hour in a moderate wind. However, Captain Knabenshue is able to sail under practically all most any weather conditions. He sits at the bow of the vessel, guiding it in its journey, while cushion seats are provided for the passengers.

Visitors to the fair who desire to make trips with Captain Knabenshue will be accommodated as fast as possible. Those who are timid and can only stand and view with amazement the marvelous product of man's skill and ingenuity will have an opportunity of a close inspection of the airship, which is to occupy a large aerodrome when not in operation.

KENTUCKY STATE FAIR NOTES.

Many handsome pieces of sterling silver plate are to be awarded at the Kentucky State Fair. Among these are a hundred-dollar cup offered by the American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association, two silver cups given by Col. W. J. Hogan, one each by Poylston stock farm, Smyser Bros., J. M. Sharp and W. T. Hayes.

The big amount of premiums offered by the Board of Agriculture at the Kentucky State Fair is supplemented as follows: By the Short Horn Breeders' Association, $675; by the Hereford Association, $300; by the Polled Durham Association, $200; by the American Hampshire Sheep Association, $22, and by the Oxford Down Sheep Association, $45.

Commissioner of Agriculture Vreeland has offered special premiums for the Kentucky State Fair aggregating $100 in the poultry department, $50 in the vegetable and melon department, $175 in the field seed and grain department, $113 on alfalfa, navy beans and corn, $50 on tobacco and $50 on horticulture.

The railroads of Kentucky have granted a half-fare rate on account of the Kentucky State Fair; that is, the round trip can be purchased for one fare, plus 25 cents. Tickets will go on sale Saturday, Sept. 14th, and will be good returning home until Monday, Sept. 23d.

Often love at first sight is due to an oversight.

HELD IN A NEW HOME

Will Be the Kentucky State Fair of 1907.

AN IDEAL LOCATION IS SECURED

New Grand Stand, New Exhibition Barns, New Stables, Everything New.

If the commendatory expressions that have reached the State Board of Agriculture upon its action in the purchase from the Douglas Park Jockey Club of its grounds and buildings reflect the sentiments of Kentuckians as a whole, there will be nothing but plaudits echoed at the State Fair in Louisville, Sept. 16 to 21. Those who have looked fully into the matter, and especially those who are acquainted with the buildings and grounds, do not attempt to chain their enthusiasm.

With one accord, they pronounce the decision a most just one.

As the Kentucky State Fair is a state institution, created by the General Assembly and operated by a body subject to its criticisms, and supported by a state appropriation, every citizen has the right, and should exercise it, to inspect closely the buildings and grounds that have been bought as a permanent home for the State Fair. They will have this opportunity during six great days, beginning Sept. 16, which have been given over to the 1907 exhibition.

To prepare them for such an inspection, a brief description will be given. The grounds cover 129 acres, and the improvements, being both new and modern, are worth in excess of $200,000. There is an immense grand stand of steel and concrete and excellently constructed stables, both for exhibition purposes and for stall use. Those at all familiar with Louisville know that the mile track is acknowledged to be the fastest for trotting exhibitions in this country, if not in the world. There is a splendid stand of good grass and large trees are studied throughout the grounds.

Many advantages might be enumerated, but among the greatest is that of transportation facilities. Both steam and electric are unsurpassed. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad company finds the fair grounds on their main line and has a switch running the full length of one side, making the fair grounds most accessible to all classes of exhibitors. Every exhibitor will recognize in this a great advantage.

The crowds that are expected to attend the fair will be adequately handled by the streetcar company, which operates a short schedule car system on double tracks direct to the entrance, only twenty-five minutes being consumed in a trip from the heart of the city. A loop gives to the street-railway company a place to store 100 cars at a time. Carriages and automobiles can gain entrance off of a well-constructed boulevard running into the fair grounds, and intersecting at the other end, a half mile away, the Grand Boulevard which is an extension of Third avenue.

SIX GREAT DAYS AND NIGHTS

State Fair at Louisville Will Be a Memorable Occasion.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the State Fair in Louisville for the week of Sept. 16th.

The entries made in all departments exceed the most sanguine expectations of the State Fair officers. Undoubtedly the live stock exhibits, as well as those in other departments, will be in keeping with State Fairs that are many years older than Kentucky's institution.

With seventeen exhibit departments the visitor will have enough to see for several days; indeed it is not expected that anyone could fully cover the Kentucky State Fair in one day's time.

Passing from the exhibit departments to the amusement features, it may be said without fear of contradiction that the biggest attractions of the kind that were ever secured for a State Fair have been contracted for by the State Board of Agriculture, under whose auspices it is to be held permanently in Louisville the State Fair.

The State Board has pulled itself away from the old ideas of carnival companies, etc. It has closed contracts only for the biggest amusement features. There will be about ten of these, but they will represent more genuine amusements than one hundred small carnival shows.

The fireworks exhibition at night, when the Eruption of Vesuvius is reproduced, will prove a great card.

In addition to all this Captain Knabenshue will personally appear at the fair in his new passenger-carrying airship.

There will also be balloon races and captive balloons.

If you want to see all of the State Fair this year we would advise you to come prepared to stay several days.

In a school in Ancoats a clergyman was questioning a class of boys on their religious instruction. He endeavored to emphasize the virtue of avoiding occasions of sin. "What should a man avoid," he asked, "who is in the habit of getting too much drunk?"

A bright-eyed but rather forlorn looking lad was ready with an answer: "Please, sir, a policeman."—Manchester Guardian.

From Our Washington Man.

[Special Correspondence.]
WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 22.—The speeches of Secretary Taft and President Roosevelt, are, of course the chief political news of the week. As the American people like their politics at first hand, it is hardly worth while to spend time bothering with what Mr. Taft says when we can get it hot from the griddle from the real oracle himself. As the President has been silent for such a long time—for him—what he now says has no doubt been carefully considered and must be taken as expressing his deliberate policy in dealing with public affairs. One of the most extraordinary statements ever made by a President of the United States is President Roosevelt's declaration that he should enforce the law against rich and poor alike. As that is the sworn duty of all Presidents, it should go without saying. The effort of politicians and financiers to induce the President to say "something reassuring" seems to have had effect for he declared "that we have undertaken and will undertake no action of a vindictive type and above all no action shall inflict great or unmerited suffering upon the innocent stockholders and upon the public as a whole. This was taken by Wall Street as meaning that the administration would not "run amuck" and railroad and trust stocks closed at substantial advances. But President Roosevelt is a consummate politician, so for public consumption he berated "certain malefactors of great wealth" and said, "they had combined to bring about as much financial stress as they possibly can in order to discredit the policy of the government." Who did the President mean? Was it Rockefeller and Harriman, or the bankers? As Mr. Roosevelt has always been well disposed toward the money power, and has virtually allowed the frenzied financiers to dictate the policy of the United States Treasury, he could hardly have had the bankers in mind, although it is known they are advising a let up in business and are refusing loans to their legitimate business customers. The financial trouble that prevails most largely in consequence of the Republican policy of finance and always helping Wall Street when in trouble, and in this President Roosevelt follows the bad example of his predecessors.

The talk of Mr. Bryan's friends that the suggestion by Democrats of a Southern man for President comes from Wall Street influence is hardly borne out by political conditions. The Republicans have always had the support of the Wall Street element since that party was able to elect a President. In return the Republican party has legislated in the interest of the corporations. If occasionally it has been necessary to appease the voters by enacting legislation against the predatory interests there has always been left a loophole in the law for the "corporations and monopolists" to continue their extortion, or escape punishment. Thus the Sherman anti-trust law and the railroad rate bill have accomplished nothing for the people, and the only real relief appears from State legislation and that the Republicans and their Wall Street allies are trying to nullify. There is no prominent Democrat named as a prospective candidate for President, either from the South or from the North, that Wall Street could dominate. Wall Street may not just like President Roosevelt, but it would take him or Secretary Taft with avidity rather than any Democrat that has been seriously mentioned.

Cannot Pay.

It is the expectation of Treasury officials in Washington that Secretary Cortelyou will soon take charge of the financial end of the Jamestown Exposition. Congress loaned the Exposition $1,000,000 last winter, to be paid back in semi-monthly installments of $100,000, beginning July 15, and the Exposition has now defaulted in three payments, and the Secretary, it is understood, has about decided to take steps necessary to the protection of the Government. It is not expected the Government will be reimbursed in full for its loan; in fact, it will be fortunate if it recovers one-half of it. (We would also like to hear a statement as to what became of the $40,000 supposed to be expended on the hut known as the Kentucky Building.)

A Lincoln Comparison.

When Lincoln was practicing at the bar, the opposing lawyer in a case had delivered a speech for the prosecution which was an exhibition of the man's conceit. When he was through, Lincoln rose slowly to his feet and addressed the court as follows: "Your honor, my colleague, who has just delivered this brilliant exhibition of oratory, reminds me of a little flat bottom steamboat that way back in the fifties used to pull up and down the Mississippi. It had a five foot boiler and an eleven foot whistle, and every time it whistled it stopped."

How to Kill Mosquitoes.

An exchange gives the following method for killing mosquitoes which may be tried with profit by some of our readers: Take the mosquito (when you find one,) you can usually catch one best in the evening, and after binding his wings firmly so there is no danger from that source, securely fasten a stout rope (a cable is better) to his right hind leg just above the fetlock and then to some stout object hang him, head down, suspended in midair. Leave this way twelve hours. This tends to subdue the creature so that you may quite safely approach him with a sharp instrument, and when the opportunity offers itself, make a deep incision just back of the cut deep enough, you have landed your game and the mosquito will die in four to six hours. Copyrighted, patented and labeled. This is the latest and only up-to-date method for the killing of mosquitoes.

Solution of Servant Problem.

"I have solved the servant problem," said the woman with the compressed lips and the determined eyes. "You have?" asked the other person. "I have. When things get to such a pass that the hired girls want three days out of every week, want the use of the parlor every other night and Sunday afternoon, want me to play soft love songs while they are entertaining their beaux in the kitchen on their evenings, insist on the privilege of dictating what groceries and meat I shall buy, claim the right to wear my clothes and bonnet, dictate whether or not I shall keep a dog or child, succeed in having my house decorated and furnished to accord with their tastes, and—

"Well, when things are, I am just—not going to keep servants any longer?"

"Better than that. I am going to hire out as a servant and enjoy life!"

Words of Praise

For the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed, as given by leaders in all the several schools of medicine, should have far more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has the name of HENNESSY on every bottle-wraper, in a full list of all its ingredients printed in plain English.

If you are an invalid woman and suffer from frequent headache, backache, gnawing distress in stomach, periodical pains, disagreeable, catarrhal, pelvic drain, dragging down distress in lower abdomen or pelvis, perhaps dark spots or specks dancing before the eyes, faint spells and kindred symptoms caused by female weakness, or the derangement of the feminine organs, you can not do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The hospital, surgeon's knife and operating table may be avoided by the timely use of "Favorite Prescription" in such cases. Thereby the obnoxious examinations and local treatments of the family physician can be avoided and a thorough course of successful treatment carried out in the privacy of the home. "Favorite Prescription" is composed of the very best native medicinal roots known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments, contains no alcohol and no harmful or habit-forming drugs.

Do not expect too much from "Favorite Prescription"; it will not perform miracles; it will not dissolve or cure tumors. No medicine will. It will do as much to establish vigorous health in most weaknesses and ailments peculiarly incident to women as any medicine can. It must be given a fair chance by perseverance in its use for a reasonable length of time.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this remedy of known composition.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is guarded as sacredly secret and womanly confidences are protected by professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The College Widow.

"The College Widow" comes to the Lexington Opera House next Wednesday for matinee and night, this is the original company which is now playing at the Grand Opera House in Cincinnati this week.

The vogue of the "College Widow," which was established first with a run of thirty-eight weeks in New York and later with one of ten weeks in Boston, cannot be ascribed wholly to any one element in the play, but the consideration that seems lasting is the youthful spirit of the story. Men and women of mature years become boys and girls again as they watch the pranks of the lively young people on the Atwater campus. Mr. Ade has generally fought rather shy of sentiment, but has provided a genuine pretty touch in the love affair between the young half-back and "the widow" which winds up the play almost ideally.

The many spectacles, besides an elaborate first part, necessitated the augmenting of the band and orchestra, and those who have seen the new production, and heard the music, say that Mr. Field's Minstrel Show this year eclipses all productions ever made in the name of modern minstrelsy.
